Junior League of New Orleans' to Host Human Trafficking Awareness Sessions

In Partnership with Covenant House, Eden House, the Greater New Orleans Human Trafficking Task Force and Truckers Against Trafficking

NEW ORLEANS, LA - In collaboration with expert partners, the Junior League of New Orleans (JLNO) ABOLISH Human Trafficking Committee is hosting two free virtual events to raise awareness for the issue of human trafficking. Registration is open to the public for a virtual screening and panel discussion of film, "Stopping Traffic," taking place on Wednesday, Dec. 15, as well as a panel discussion featuring survivor stories on Tuesday, Jan. 25.

JLNO is proud to support the ABOLISH project for the third year, with continued sponsorship from the United Way of Southeast Louisiana and partnership with Covenant House, the Greater New Orleans Human Trafficking Task Force and Truckers Against Trafficking.

"Human trafficking is one of the worst human rights violations of our time," says Susan Dold, Systems Administrator for Truckers Against Trafficking. "The traffickers are counting on our ignorance and our apathy to victimize our children. We can no longer be silent. We need good men and women who are willing to stand up and make a difference for someone who is trapped in a life of sex slavery."

"In 2017, there was an estimate of more than 900 trafficked people in the Greater New Orleans Area," says Jennifer Ray, Coordinator of the Greater New Orleans Human Trafficking Task Force. "The Junior League of New Orleans' ABOLISH Human Trafficking Committee is highlighting the important role that the community can play in bringing awareness to human trafficking. Public awareness has been effective at increasing support and resources needed for helping victims of trafficking, many of who are minors and women."

JLNO and partners look forward to continue engaging our membership and the general public on this critical community issue through the following virtual events:
